

Names from the South New Sources of Linguistic Data from Coastal Guatemala

LAWRENCE H. FELDMAN

Several languages were once spoken in the Pacific piedmont of colonial Guatemala (Feldman 1986). The languages of San Antonio Suchitepequez, Siquinala, Toliman and Pochutla were apparently Mayan. Escuintla spoke the Nahua tongue and Guazacapan used the little known Szinca language. None of these towns are known for their native texts but one source of data does exist: the native surnames in the census documents of the 18th and early 19th centuries. It is the purpose of this short note to make available a sample for linguistic analysis.

The information tabulated here comes from seven documents of the Archivo General de Centro America:

Guazacapan 1816. A3.16-953-17778
Escuintla 1756. A3.16-948-17699
Escuintla 1821. A1.44-2912-3021
Siquinala 1726. A3.16-235-4651
Pochutla 1751. A3.116-945-17648

San Lucas Toliman 1768. A3.16-2327-34341
San Antonio Suchitepequez 1813. A1.44-3020-29099

All surnames of apparent Nahua origin are in cursive hand. All that appear to be Mayan are given in bold face type. These determinations are based upon a quick inspection without use of reference material. Certainly the help of colonial dictionaries (e.g. Maldonado Matos 1770, Molina 1944 and Coto 1610) would greatly expand the language identifications. It is of interest to note that all towns, regardless of formal linguistic affiliation, have Nahua and Mayan names. Some of these are obviously of prehispanic origin (e.g. the use of day names like secali or «one house»). Further study of this data should expand our knowledge of the cultures of this little known portion of Guatemala.
