

MAILOC

Melville Richards

At first sight the name of this bishop, noted in 572, would appear to be exactly cognate with the Welsh name Maelog. Maelog is a derivate of the W Mael 'prince, chief, leader', which occurs both as a common noun and as a personal name. The suffix -og < -acos* through -awc, -awg > -og. This is why it is difficult to accept Mailoc in 572, since the change from -awc (-awg) to -oc, -og did not occur in Welsh until some centuries later.

However, Mael and its derivatives are firmly established in Welsh in various forms. Maelog as a saint's name is found in Llanfaelog in Anglesey, and with the hypocoristic prefix -ty in the name Tyfaelog, as in Llandyfaelog in Carmarthenshire and Breconshire. Maelog itself may be an affectionate diminutive, since we know that another well-known saint was familiarly known as Cadog, but that his official name was Cadfael. Maelog may therefore stand for a full two-element name like Maelien (Maglo- + genos) or Maelgwn (Maglo-cunos), but there is no definite evidence to prove this.

Maelog was also apparently known as Meilyg (later Meilig), and patron saint of Llywes in Radnorshire, but there may have been early confusion between two different persons. Meilyg could < Maglocu*, the nominative case of Maglocunos*.

The hagiographic details may be found in Baring-Gould and Fisher, The Lives of the British Saints, Vol. III, s.n. Maelog.
